Then Aashish Sir addressed the participants and after giving a very brief introduction about himself he started with the session. With the help of a PPT presentation Sir explained the topic. The concepts covered by him were such as 'What is a web?', 'What is blockchain technology?', 'How does blockchain work with Web3?', 'What are the terms such as crypto currency and how are these used in Web3?' All these concepts were addressed by him and thoroughly explained by using various practical examples, day to day life examples. After this theory part one of Aashish Sir's team member briefed the students about the history of Blockchains and Web3 and also about the future perspectives of the same. Further, another team member of Aashish Sir helped us follow the certain steps and install an application called D'Cent Wallet in which they will be transferring some minimum amount in individual students application and also made the students download a set of files. The purpose of making install the D'Cent Wallet application was to teach the participants that how we can link with a hardware wallet or use it as a software wallet without hardware. A task related to the set of files was provided to every participant which was, every participant had to transfer 500 documents from those files to a particular place.
